Summer-Ready Senior Homes in Terre Haute: Local Safety Checklist

Summer in Terre Haute can be lovely, sure, but the heat can also sneak up fast. For older adults, a few smart home updates can make all the difference between a rough season and a comfortable one.

A little planning now can help keep things calm later. As temperatures rise, seniors are more vulnerable to heat, dehydration, and slips or trips around the house, so it pays to get ahead of the game.

What You Will Learn

- How to prepare a senior's home to stay safe, cool, and comfortable during the summer months.
- Simple ways to help older adults stay hydrated, prevent falls, and manage heat-related health risks.
- Why emergency planning, medication safety, and outdoor home maintenance are important during warm weather.
- How in-home care can provide extra support to help seniors remain safe, healthy, and independent throughout the summer.

Keep the Home Cool and Comfortable

A cool home is one of the best defenses against summer heat.

- Service the air conditioner before the hottest days roll in.
- Replace HVAC filters so air can move freely.
- Test fans to make sure they're doing their job.
- Close blinds or curtains during peak afternoon heat.
- If there's no air conditioning, line up a nearby cooling center, library, or community space.

Build a Simple Hydration Habit

Older adults may not always feel thirsty, even when they need fluids, so regular water breaks matter.

- Keep water bottles within easy reach.
- Sip water throughout the day instead of waiting until thirst hits.
- Add hydrating foods like watermelon, cucumbers, berries, and oranges.
- Cut back on sugary drinks and too much caffeine.

Check Outdoor Spaces for Trouble Spots

If we're spending more time outside, patios, walkways, and yards should be safe and easy to move through.

- Fix uneven pavement or loose stones.
- Clear hoses, tools, and clutter from paths.
- Trim bushes that block walkways.
- Make sure handrails are sturdy.
- Check that outdoor lights work well after dark.

Get Ready for Storms and Outages in Terre Haute

Summer weather can turn stormy in a hurry, so a backup plan is worth having.

Keep an emergency kit stocked with:

- Bottled water
- Nonperishable food
- Flashlights and batteries

- Essential medications
- Emergency contacts
- Backup chargers for phones or medical devices

It also helps to agree on a communication plan with family members ahead of time.

Watch Medication Storage and Side Effects

Heat can affect some medicines, and certain prescriptions can make the body more sensitive to warm weather.

- Store medications exactly as directed.
- Keep them out of direct sunlight.
- Ask a healthcare provider about heat-related side effects.

Reduce Fall Risks Indoors

Summer can bring extra slip hazards, especially when water gets tracked in from outside.

- Place non-slip mats near entrances.
- Keep floors free of clutter.
- Brighten dim hallways and rooms.
- Wear supportive shoes indoors and outdoors.
