

Do You Know the Warning Signs of an Infection?

Infections are some of the leading causes of hospitalizations in seniors and account for roughly one-third of senior deaths. These conditions can be challenging to diagnose because seniors do not always present the classic symptoms, such as fever or pain. Whether in the hospital, in an assisted living facility, out in the community, or at home, certain steps for older adults can be taken to improve infection prevention. For more information on how to prevent infections, please contact us at 908-484-1600 to keep your senior safe.

Infection Prevention Tips for Seniors

With aging, the immune system naturally weakens, putting seniors at increased risk of illness and infection. In addition, many seniors also have other health conditions that can make them more susceptible. Whether in the hospital, an assisted living facility, out in ... Read Article
